Bayview Construction President Serves a Seminar Panelist at World's Largest Light Construction Trade Show

Stuart, Fla. (February 20, 2009) – Ken Ringe, president of Stuart-based Bayview Construction, landed a coveted role as a seminar panelist during the International Builders' Show in Las Vegas, the world's largest light construction trade show. Ringe served as an expert panelist for the Business Opportunities and New Markets seminar, educating construction industry colleagues about the importance of understanding the intricacies of bonding, accounting and lien issues.

"I'm honored to have been selected to participate on this panel to help others become more informed and successful," said Ringe, president of Bayview Construction. "The construction industry is always evolving, and it's more important than ever to stay on top of numerous details of our business. Those who don't adapt and stay up-to-date will not last very long in this very competitive industry."

During the seminar, the thirty-year-plus construction veteran placed a notable emphasis on teaching attendees how to effectively transition from the residential to commercial sector of the construction industry. Ringe stated that proper accounting methods, strict adherence to government processes and regulations, and the establishment and implementation of standard office operating procedures are critical to securing appropriate bonding for commercial projects.

The International Builders' Show is the largest annual light construction show in the world, with more than 1.5 million square feet of the latest and most advanced building products and services. The annual event attracts over 80,000 attendees.

Ringe is a member and immediate past chairman of the Florida Home Builders Association's (FHBA) Commercial Builders Council, a member of the FHBA's Board of Directors, and served as a FHBA area vice president. He is also a National Association of Home Builders (NAHB) Council trustee, and former NAHB director. Ringe is a past president of the Treasure Coast Builders Association (TCBA) and was voted as TCBA Builder of the Year in 2006.
